

THE CULTURAL AND INTERCULTURAL DIMENSIONS OF ENGLISH AS A LINGUA FRANCA

Edited by Prue Holmes (Durham University) and
Fred Dervin (University of Helsinki)

Review

This is a rich and multifaceted volume that tackles the difficult question of the relation between interculturality and English as a Lingua Franca. By bringing two fields together, ELF and intercultural communication, that up to now have shown little interest in one another, the contributors to this volume are able to ask provocative questions, present innovative views and make bold suggestions that will benefit research in both ELF and intercultural communication.
Claire Kramsch, University of California, Berkeley, USA

Description

This book investigates the cultural and intercultural aspects of English as a Lingua Franca (ELF). The chapters consider the communication and pedagogical implications of these dimensions and offer suggestions for new directions in ELF research, pedagogy and curriculum development.
